03 Demon Flyer - Bizarre Desert Cryptid? Demonoid? A True Creepy Story The Wailing Wind Navajo Mysteries The Wailing Wind is the fifteenth crime fiction novel in the Joe Leaphorn/Jim Chee Navajo Tribal Police series by Tony Hillerman, first published in 2002. It is a New York Times best-seller. The case of a murdered man, found in a truck on a canyon wash, immediately links to a past shooting and a lost woman tied to myths of lost gold mines, so the retired Joe Leaphorn involves himself along with Bernadette Manuelito of the Navajo Tribal Police. The Wailing Wind - Wikipedia The Wailing Wind by Tony Hillerman is the fifteenth mystery featuring Joe Leaphorn. Joe is now retired but it doesn't stop him from consulting in his own way when trouble arises. A call comes in about an abandoned truck inside the bounds of the Navajo Nation. Officer Bernadette Manuelito is the one sent to the scene. The Wailing Wind (Leaphorn & Chee, #15) by Tony Hillerman. Harper Collins, Oct 13, 2009 - Fiction - 304 pages. 9 Reviews. To Officer Bernadette Manuelito, the man curled up on the truck seat was just another drunk—which... The Wailing Wind - Tony Hillerman - Google Books. The previous "Navajo mystery," Hunting Badger, was the low point in the series for a number of reasons, including shoddy editing by Hillerman's complacent publisher, HarperCollins. I'm happy to report that The Wailing Wind is a much better book. Not one of the best in this excellent series, but a fun read that offers the novice a taste of what makes the series must haves for mystery readers and devotees of the Southwest, and advances the continuing threads that interest the committed ... The Wailing Wind, by Tony Hillerman - Dancing Badger. The 15th Chee/Leaphorn mystery (after 1999's relatively weak Hunting Badger) finds MWA Grand Master Hillerman back at the top of his form as his two Navajo peace officers look into both a past and... Fiction Book Review: THE WAILING WIND by Tony Hillerman ... They had heard, in the wind wailing around the old buildings, what sounded like music and the cries of a woman. Bernie Manuelito uses her knowledge of Navajo country, its tribal traditions, and her friendship with a famous old medicine man to unravel the first knot of this puzzle, with Jim Chee putting aside his distaste for the FBI to help her. The Wailing Wind (2002) | The Tony Hillerman Portal. The Wailing Wind Navajo Mysteries. The Wailing Wind is the fifteenth crime fiction novel in the Joe Leaphorn/Jim Chee Navajo Tribal Police series by Tony Hillerman, first published in 2002. In The Wailing Wind, the 15th novel to feature Navajo cops Joe Leaphorn and/or Jim Chee, these virtues are on full display. The older, more acculturated Leaphorn and the younger, more traditional Chee debuted independently -- Leaphorn in 1970's The Blessing Way and Chee in 1980's People of

Darkness -- but these two have been loosely collaborating since Skinwalkers, published in 1986. Review | The Wailing Wind by Tony Hillerman. The Wailing Wind (Navajo Mysteries Book 15) by Tony Hillerman. To Officer Bernadette Manuelito, the man curled up on the truck seat was just another drunk—which got Bernie in trouble for mishandling a crime scene—which got Sergeant Jim Chee in trouble with the FBI—which drew Lieutenant Joe Leaphorn out of retirement and back into the old "Golden Calf" homicide, a case he had hoped to forget.
